The National Rural Crime Network

is a coalition of countryside campaigners, police and crime commissioners and private tech partners working together to better understand and tackle the growing menace of rural crime. Our groundbreaking research, national media reach and extensive network organisation makes us an emerging but powerful voice in campaigning for decision makers to take the fight against rural crime seriously.

Succeeding Together

In a short time, the NRCN and our partners have delivered a number of important successes.

- Conducted groundbreaking research showing a direct link between criminal gangs in rural communities and the international drugs trade.
- Campaigned successfully for the creation of a National Rural Crime Unit within the Police. Campaigned successfully for tougher penalties for those convicted of fly-tipping and DEFRA funding for a fly tipping specialist.
- Successfully advocated for legislation to tackle agriculture machinery theft by making immobilisers and forensic marking a legal requirement.
- Organised the 3rd National Rural Crime Network Conference bringing together key players for the world of politics, policing, private technology companies and countryside campaigners. Established a reach into the national media to promote key rural crime issues including Farmers Guardian, BBC, Farmers Weekly, The Press York and Greatest Hits Radio (Hello Rayo).

We need your support to elevate our campaign against rural crime to new heights. By becoming an Associate Member you can contribute directly to the efforts whilst raising the profile of your organisation as a key player in the protection of rural communities.

Your membership will help us to fund new research, key round table policy events and campaigns to expose the shocking truth about rural crime and those affected.

Your support will help us to:

- Lobby the government to produce a full economic impact assessment of rural crime and other key policies.
- Approach the government to fund new technology and innovative pilot projects to tackle rural crime.
- Produce a 'Rural Crime Uncovered' social media campaign including short films, a podcast series and national media coverage.
- Organise a fly-tipping summit to overcome the challenges of tackling the increasing problem of illegal fly tipping in our countryside.
- Support the National Rural Crime Network Annual Conferences by bringing together key partners from the UK and abroad to share best practice and solutions to tackling rural crime.
